4. Prevention of confusion on the market for conformity assessments

- 4.1 Accreditation bodies on the one hand and certification bodies on the other hand both engage in conformity assessment. Accreditation bodies, however, assess the competence of CABs while CABs assess the conformity of products, services and suppliers to specifications and/or requirements. The Organisation acknowledges, therefore, that Accreditation is qualitatively different from certification to specific requirements of a particular standard and in acknowledgement of the distortion of the market that would arise out of public confusion as to the significance of Accreditation as distinct from certification the Organisation agrees not to do anything whether by act, omission or statement whether directly or indirectly which may cause or increase confusion amongst the public in respect of this distinction and to make reasonable efforts to dispel any public confusion that does arise in respect of this distinction.

- 5.6 In the event that the Organisation cancels any confirmed visit by INAB to its premises (or any other premises, including the premises of any client of the Organisation) without giving at least six weeks notice to INAB or in the event that INAB cancels any confirmed visit in accordance with clause 5.5 above, a cancellation fee comprising the sum of the expenses incurred for such a visit plus 50% of the relevant INAB fee shall be payable by the Organisation to INAB.

- 7.7 The Organisation shall, in its contractual arrangements with its clients, require such clients to refrain from any misrepresentations as to the Organisation's Accreditation status or any misleading acts or statements in relation to the significance of Accreditation and in particular from any representation that the fact of Accreditation of the Organisation who has carried out the conformity assessment of such client's products or services implies that the products or services are approved by INAB and the Organisation shall ensure that its clients abide by their obligations in this respect.

Accordingly, the Organisation shall indemnify INAB against any and all damages, costs, charges and expenses (including legal expenses) incurred by INAB in dealing with, responding to, defending, or being otherwise involved in, any claim, action, enquiry, investigation, or prosecution, brought or conducted, by any third party, regulatory or other body, and which claim, action, enquiry, investigation or prosecution relates to any failure or claimed failure of the Organisation to comply with the Accreditation Criteria or with any provision of the Contract, or to any infringement or breach by the Organisation in the course of its carrying out accredited activities of any third person's contractual or other rights or any duty of care owed by the Organisation to its customers or claimed infringement or breach of the aforesaid, or to any claim that the Organisation has made false or misleading claims or representations in relation to its Application or its Accreditation status.

15.2 For the avoidance of doubt, the indemnity at clause 15.1 hereof shall not apply to damages awarded against INAB to the extent that such damages relate to demonstrated breach by INAB of a duty of care owed to the public in respect of the accreditation granted to the Organisation or to the costs attributable to dealing with claims relating to any such breach.
